1. Introduction

This book builds on Volume 1 of the book series. Not just on the words you read, but on the skills described in them, honestly. Therefore, you will benefit fully from this book if you have "metabolized" Volume 1 sustainably or know for sure that you do not need Volume 1 for yourself personally.

I would therefore like to point out that this book is based, among other things, on the fact that you have now reached your own essential size and feel comfortable in it. You have also understood that the natural orders are based on your essential size and experienced how this has a very practical effect in (your own) human life. As a result, you very consciously have certain abilities that are now available to you as unconscious competence.

You also have:

- Your own essential life in all aspects that a human life contains, including the associated theoretical knowledge.
- The clear awareness of your essential tasks.
- First practical experience in the field of natural orders and thus a fundamental holistic understanding of the topic.

The natural orders arose in the setting of a realm in the energy-based dimension and are therefore still subject to the energy-based laws. Even if we implement them very consciously in human, material-based living space. Ideally, you have well-founded specialist knowledge, both in the area of material-based human living space and in the area of energy-based laws. And if you know within yourself that the conscious introduction of the natural orders is one of your essential tasks, consciously allow everything that is required for this to flow to you step by step.

Energy-based means, among other things (also):

- It is your duty to create a fulfilling and rich life for yourself.
- You yourself are responsible for perceiving your authentic here and now needs and taking them seriously.
- Your focus must be primarily on yourself and only when you are able to stably live a beneficial self-management (in the sense of the energy-based understanding) will your global tasks open up to you.
- It opens up to you according to your (free) natural size, your (conscious) natural abilities, your personal human maturity and the sustainable processing of all your human tasks.

We're going to talk about natural limitations and natural abilities in this volume. But also illuminating the aspect of power and in this context the importance that highly developed people consciously take their natural place in human society and at the same time naturally accept their essential power. This fact is one of the basic prerequisites for the natural orders to be able to be rooted in the long term, in the human society.

And when I talk about power, in this book, I'm talking about the energy-based form of power. A form that has little in common with the form of power currently lived in human life.

If you look at the natural orders from an energy-based point of view, you will discover that they are based on a certain vibration frequency and thus on a certain basic attitude.

This attitude includes:

- Respect for all living beings.
- Peace, safety, clarity and order.
- Acknowledgment of what is here and now: the ugly and the good.

So, there is neither judgment nor condemnation. There is neither under nor overstraining. There is no disadvantage and there is no favoritism. Instead, each member of society occupies that place which corresponds to their personal level of development, current holistic state, personal abilities and intention for this one human incarnation.

- If the external judgment or even standardization falls away, life begins to become free and essential.
- If there are no more (externally specified) goals or results to be achieved, you can work freely and develop freely.
- If any form of experience is valued as valuable, holistic wealth is allowed to develop.
- If a person is allowed to be as he is and take his (own) place in society, he will remain healthy in the long term and holistically.

And once you have recognized and grasped the power of energy-based evolution, you will understand that the subject of natural orders is not just about practical structures, but that they particularly need the foundation of the basic attitude / vibration frequency described. And if you like, consciously let your own inner essential self show you sad vibrational frequency and then very consciously keep it stable repeatedly. So that it can permanently install itself in your holistic system and you have it available at any time in unconscious competence on your further way.

People are used to changing through discussion or action. As already written, the natural orders are subject to the energy-based laws and here you change by means of conscious energy shifts and thus by means of consciously chosen vibration frequencies. And if you are one of those people who will implement the natural orders in the human habitat, you must be completely safe in the energy-based form of conscious change.

If not, ask your own inner essential self for a hands-on introduction to the subject. Then, very consciously, work until you are completely secure in the energy-based form of conscious shifting. If you feel that you need additional external support, you may find what you are looking for in the book "Energy-based Work – Theory and Practice".

On an energy-based level you change from the inside out and thereby according to the energy-based hierarchy. Viewed in terms of energy, the strongest power lies in the respective vibration frequency and thus in the respective basic attitude. If this is clear and pure, it involuntarily begins to form accordingly. If things are not going as desired or expected on the outside, it is important from an energy-based point of view to keep a conscious eye on the underlying attitude. It is very often the case that negative experiences that have not yet been fully processed are contaminating and these must be consciously discovered and then consciously processed.

If you are familiar with the human habitat and then find your way more and more into the energy-based form of change, you will very quickly realize that this approach changes much faster, more effortlessly and more sustainably than material-based forms of change are able to do. If you then go a little deeper into the topic, you will probably also recognize the great power of the energy-based form of change. And as a result, you will at best come into contact with the energy-based form of power for the first time. A form of power based on the natural size and therefore the natural integrity of a being / human being.

2. Power

Power includes the aspect of conscious shaping and whoever refuses the issue of power also refuses to consciously accept responsibility and thereby the task of consciously shaping. First of all, his own life.

In the human environment power is often lived in a very ugly, negative and perverted way. Powerlessness is also very often one of the formative basic experiences of a person and so, it is not surprising that highly developed people sometimes have difficulties with the topic of power and often, if possible, avoid it in their very practical everyday life.

Now, however, it is one of our tasks to purify and clarify formative issues in human society in order to then reinstall them in a pure form. Money, love, sexuality, femininity, masculinity, family, systems, work, agriculture, church/spirituality/transcendence, health/illness, education and also power are such themes. We don't erase the issues. Rather, we purify and clear them and reimplement them in pure form. One of the essential basic tasks of every highly developed human being, at present. And if you look at your personal biography from this point of view, you will easily find that some of your "life nodes" can certainly be viewed from the point of view of "sustainable cleaning work". You have got to know the perverted forms of femininity, for example. You have (lived out) a lot of it and thereby clarified it. You have climbed the topic of purification one level at a time, becoming ever purer and clearer and then ultimately carry a pure and clear form of femininity within you. You also did the same thing with other perverted issues of human society, one after another.

Every single highly evolved human being is doing this now. Everyone cleans as many issues as they can. So that he then carries as many purified topics as possible in his own energy room and then anchors them in human society by means of a stable vibration frequency. One of our main tasks, therefore.

The procedure described bypasses the human social hierarchy and its power structures and is at the same time subordinate to the universal council of light. We are therefore definitely involved and subordinate with our work and cannot simply act wildly and disorderly. Meanwhile, we definitely do. Very conscious. We change and we shape. Positive and life-enhancing. We do it within the framework of our substantial size and personal integrity. Yet, we do it in the setting of a universal mission. In doing so, we use power. We use them very consciously and we use them with the utmost integrity. Therefore, you will probably understand why it is so important that you clarify and cleanse the topic sustainably, within yourself.

We use the energy-based and pure form of power. And this means that you must have clarified the material-based human form of power sustainably in yourself in order to then be able to use and live the energy-based form of power. And if you like, consciously allow lasting clearing and cleansing in your holistic system over the next few days and consciously face everything that shows up to you. You'll know when you've worked up to a lasting conclusion. And then, when you meet the energy-based form of power for the first time, you will involuntarily breathe a sigh of relief. The energy-based form of power is pure and clear. It is what you have always wanted and yet, thought it did not exist, in this form of integrity.

The energy-based form of power includes:

- Security and protection
- Awareness and clarity
- An authentic and therefore essential competence to act.

And I would now like to delve a little deeper into this.

2.1 Security and protection

As an average person, you are used to a variety of insecurities and unprotected settings and situations. They are a natural part of the human environment these days. At the same time, from an energy-based point of view, you can only work in your full strength and power, if you are fully protected and safe. And if you like, consciously allow this topic to be cleaned and clarified in your holistic being and then to be stable and safe. You have to be 100 percent safe at all times and you have to know that you are fully protected at all times. This does not happen overnight and usually requires a longer process and your awareness of this fact. Yet,, you absolutely need the described state and so, it requires your conscious attention. Here, too, work very consciously, clarify and cleanse and also record the underlying vibration frequencies in this aspect.

Then let your own inner essential self show you consciously how your personal protection is designed. It is also important here that you not only read and understand cognitively, but at the same time also experience very practically and thus recognize increasingly comprehensively. You will experience this in your own personal way, and you will experience that which serves you personally and for your further tasks. Nevertheless, I would like to formulate a few aspects at this point.

They are meant for you personally. But also, for your (possible) teaching activities.

You are subject to the energy-based laws.

And what I am writing here now, applies explicitly to those people who are so highly developed and whose consciousness has opened so far that they are subject to the energy-based dimension. This does not happen to all people by far, it is important to be aware of that. In addition, not all people who claim this about themselves are connected to the energy-based dimension. And so, the topic of realities and truth is still a big topic in human life. This will probably remain the case for some time to come. It therefore seems all the more important to me that you become extraordinarily fit in this topic and are therefore able to know for sure at all times. Of course, also, whether you yourself are subject to the energy-based laws.

In the materially based human environment, you can theoretically be attacked, accused or even convicted at any time. Even if you are peaceful and innocent. However, if your own basic frequency has increased to a certain level and you are subject to the energy-based laws, this is no longer possible. Even if you still live as a normal person in the human habitat, you are no longer subject to the conditions there. You must understand this aspect in depth. As basic knowledge, so to speak.

At the same time, by means of the lawfulness of the resonance, you draw to yourself what is (still) stuck in your holistic system, and so, it can happen during a certain transitional phase that you experience great injustice (or abuse or similar negative topics). You have to understand this too, so that you don't get bogged down in all sorts of explanatory models. What is happening to you during this transition period is an overall cleansing and clearing. What is still negative and burdensome in your holistic system should now be dissolved. During the said phase you will at best be working within the framework of your essential tasks, at the same time the focus is clearly on cleaning and clarifying your holistic system. And you have to be aware of that too.

You only then, can no longer draw to yourself when your holistic system is completely pure. Fundamentals of energy-based laws. And since the goal of your own inner essential self is your complete protection and safety, your holistic system has to get completely purified. You can no longer experience abuse thereafter unless related energies are imposed in your holistic system, for example. Whatever other people try; they will not succeed.

For this, however, your holistic system must be completely cleansed and that is why you often go through many a situation of abuse before this complete cleanliness.

If you understand this dynamic, it will be easier for you to deal with it. Nevertheless, what you experience usually offends, burdens and hurts you. And so, it is nonetheless necessary to consciously appreciate and consciously work through the associated pain and injuries. Yet, there is also the gift of lasting cleansing and clarification of your holistic system. And this, too, must be consciously acknowledged.

Please take enough time to understand the aspects described in depth, as they will lead to a variety of discrepancies and unrest in the years to come if they are not understood. Highly developed people are now increasingly clarifying and cleansing (their own system, primarily) and if they themselves do not know about this fact, they will involuntarily throw themselves into all kinds of explanatory models. Explanatory models that ultimately do not serve them and that slow them down or even repeatedly block them.

However, we urgently need these highly developed people as consciously and as cleanly as possible. And so, it is crucially important that as many people as possible know and understand and thus not only go through their own purification processes more effectively and quickly, but also consciously shape and
